STATE FRUIT GROWERS

Meet in Their Seventeenth Annual Session.

THE NECESSITY OF PARASITES

More Strict Quarantine Laws Are Needed—Officers Elected and Committees Appointed.

LOS ANGELES, November 21.—Elwood Cooper called the seventeenth annual session of the State Fruit Growers' Association to order today. Fifty delegates were present at the opening and more arrived later.

Hon. Abbott Kinney made the opening address, setting forth the importance of horticultural work.

President Cooper delivered his annual address, reviewing the work of the fruit growers. He urged the necessity of a bureau of fruit statistics. He referred to the importance of the work of parasites, and said fruit growers must rely on themselves and establish a permanent bureau to secure parasites. He called attention to the need of stricter quarantine laws.

Abbott Kinney and G. J. Griffith were elected first and second vice presidents, respectively.

At the afternoon session President Cooper was ill and Abbott Kinney presided. J. E. Cutter of Riverside read a treatise on varieties of oranges and lemons, which was discussed at length. Rev. A. T. Perkins acted as secretary.

Committees were appointed as follows: Resolutions, G. J. Griffith, Los Angeles; A. Scott Chapman, San Gabriel; William Chappel, Duarte; H. A. Brainard, San Jose; J. J. Pratt, Yuba City. Committee on address, President Abbott Kinney, Kinneylea; General Bouten, Los Angeles; Alfred Holman, San Francisco. Committee on Legislation, E. W. Maslin, San Francisco; F. A. Kimball, National City; R. C. Ellis, Yuba City; A. T. Perkins, Alameda; J. F. McIntyre, Fillmore. Committee on transportation and freight rates, H. P. Stabler, Yuba City; C. W. Reed, Sacramento; A. B. Chapman, San Gabriel; N. W. Blanchard, Santa Paula; I. H. Thomas, Visalia.

Edward Berwick of Monterey read a paper on "Transportation," in which he took the position that the government should own the railroads. This met with some opposition.

E. F. Adams of Santa Clara delivered an address on "Marketing Dried Fruit," in which he spoke in favor of selling such products through local or state associations.

Mr. Chamberlain of Riverside spoke of the practical workings of the association of orange growers.

THE CALIFORNIA PRESS

Making Arrangements for Headquarters at the Fair.

SANTA ROSA, November 21.—A. B. Lemon, president of the California Press Association, has announced the following committee which is to arrange headquarters for the press association at the Midwinter Fair and to provide for maintaining the same: J. A. Filcher, editor of the Auburn Herald; G. L. Francis, of the Napa Register; J. W. Ferguson, of the Fresno Expositor; H. Z. Osborn, of the Los Angeles Express; T. W. Sheehan, business manager of the Record-Union, Sacramento.

It is the intention of the press association to open headquarters in which to keep all California papers on file and to receive all newspaper visitors to the fair.

AUGUST HEILBRON DEAD.

The Well Known Fresnoan Passes Away at Sacramento.

SACRAMENTO, November 21.—August Heilbron, one of the wealthiest and best known citizens of Sacramento, who has large stock raising interests in this vicinity and Fresno county, died this morning at the age of 58 years.

He was interested in the hardware firm of Schaw, Ingram & Batcher of Sacramento, and Hawley, Heilbron & Co. of San Francisco.

A Newspaper Agent Suicides.

EUREKA, November 21.—Word has just reached the city from Garberville that O. W. Johnson, aged 65, who claimed to be an agent for the San Francisco Examiner, committed suicide there by hanging. Not receiving money which he expected, he left town on the 14th instant, and on the 18th instant the body was found hanging to the limb of a redwood tree about a mile from town.

Will Promote Growler Rushing.

OAKLAND, November 21.—The local sensation of the day here is the reduction of $2 per barrel in the price of beer declared yesterday by the English syndicate which control all the breweries on this side of the bay except the Washington in this city and the American of Berkeley, making the present price $8 per barrel of thirty gallons. The object evidently is to crush out all opposition to the English syndicate.

Still a Mystery.

LOS GATOS, November 21.—Gilbert Iverson, who so mysteriously disappeared Sunday evening, has not been found. It is now believed that he wandered away in a fit of insanity. He was owing some money and failed to collect here to meet the debt, and this seems to have been preying on his mind.

The Markets.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 21.—Wheat Quiet; December, $1.06¾; May, $1.20½.

Barley—Quiet; December, 74¼c; May, 86c.

Corn—90c.

PACIFIC COAST ITEMS.

Work on the Gila dam in Arizona is to begin in January.

Frank Morse, a bar tender at San Jose, committed suicide by gas suffocation Saturday.

The great raft which went ashore last Saturday has done great damage to the jetty at the mouth of the Coos river.

Santa Barbara has decided to have its next floral festival in April, when four days will be devoted to the pageants.

The publishers of the Sunday Mercury at Portland are under arrest, charged with selling obscene matter to minors.

The criminal classes are becoming numerous at Santa Barbara, and several daring robberies there are reported lately.

The National Nickel Company, whose mine is located forty miles southeast of Lovelocks, in Churchill county, Nev., is about to commence the construction of big works at that point for reducing nickel ore found in that district.

Lewelling Davis, 60 years of age, was killed by a passing train between Grant and San Pablo stations Friday afternoon.

Claude Gill, 16 years of age, and Walter Rogers, 17 years, have been arrested at Ukiah for robbing the freight cars of the North Pacific Coast.

The sheriff of San Bernardino county has received a couple of bloodhounds, which will be used in trailing criminals in the mountains and on the desert.

After eighteen years of litigation the Jamul ranch of 10,000 acres, in San Diego county, has been conveyed to H. L. Titus in liquidation of attorneys' fees. The case was originally known as Leach vs. Burton and was carried to the supreme court, and Mrs. Burton was awarded one-fifth of the estate as a homestead.

Seven Burned.

BEAVER, Pa., November 21.—At Merrill station, on the Cleveland & Pittsburg road, at 4.30 this morning, Bradley & Kerner's three-story hotel, in which many men employed on a new dam boarded, burned to the ground. Many who jumped from the second and third-story windows were badly cut, bruised and burned. Seven bodies, so far, have been recovered from the ruins.

Cutting Rates.

CHICAGO, November 21.—The Canadian Pacific is now making a rate of $16.50 from St. Paul to Victoria, B.C., which, added to the $4 rate by steamer, makes a $20.50 rate from St. Paul to San Francisco. Chicago brokers are thus able to make a rate of $32 from here to San Francisco and are catching a majority of the business. There are prospects of a lively row.

Young Stevenson Weds.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., November 26.—Lewis Green Stevenson, the only son of Vice President Stevenson, was married tonight to Miss Helen Davis, daughter of the editor of the Daily Pantagraph, a paper which has always opposed the vice president politically.

MINISTER THURSTON

REPLIES TO COMMISSIONER BLOUNT'S REPORT.

Indignation Exists Among all Classes by Reason of the Queen's Alliances.

WASHINGTON, November 21.—Lorrin A. Thurston, Hawaiian minister, today made a statement for publication. He says: "A large portion of Blount's report consists of personal attacks on me and those associated with me in the provisional government, impugning our veracity, good faith and courage, charging us with fraud and duplicity. Although he states I was a leader in the revolutionary movement, he never asked me a question nor gave me an opportunity to make a statement the same time he did a large number of other men who took a prominent part in the movement last January. His evidence consists exclusively of prepared affidavits or answers to leading questions put by himself at private interviews, no one else being present but a stenographer. There was no opportunity in his cross-examination to contradict or explain evidence."

Thurston enters a specific denial to Blount's statement that Stevens and Wiltse acted in collusion with the revolutionists. He says the troops did not operate with the committee of safety, and the committee had no more knowledge than did the Queen's government where the troops were going or what they were going to do. The result of the movement would have been eventually the same if there had not been a marine within a thousand miles of Honolulu. The committee of safety was openly organized for the avowed purpose of overthrowing the Queen, and there was no attempt at concealment of the objects and intentions of the committee. The Queen and her supporters are utterly demoralized and devoid of leadership. The committee and supporters united and had ample force to execute their purpose.

Thurston gives in detail the troubles of the early part of the present year and mentions the intense indignation existing among all classes of citizens by reason of the open and successful alliance of the Queen with the opium and lottery rings. Thurston seems in a cheerful frame of mind and feels the administration has now fired its heaviest gun.

At the state department today it was said the newspapers had been given all in the Hawaiian matter except the instructions to Willis. It is stated the instructions will be made public in Honolulu and then come to this country. It is asserted the information received on the Australia was highly satisfactory to the administration and showed just the progress expected. The belief is expressed that a change has already been accomplished and the next steamer will bring the important information that Minister Willis has carried out his instructions and the restoration of the Queen has been complete.

A Neat Find.

LANCASTER, Pa., November 21.—Dr. Bailey of Gap, a village eighteen miles east of here, yesterday discovered an iron pot under an old farm house he had recently bought. Investigation proved that the pot contained $2600 in gold and silver coins. There were also found three sets of solid silver spoons marked "C."

Directum Won.

NEW YORK, November 21.—The trotting match between Directum and Alix took place today. Directum won in three straight heats. The fastest time was 2.08.

Ancient Stationers.

In mediæval times the stationarius, or stationer, held official connection with a university and sold at his stall, or station, the books written or copied by the librarius, or book writer. Such is the origin of the modern term stationer, one who now keeps for sale implements of such service, and not usually the productions of literary persons.—Harper's Bazar.

A Lost Bride.

An absentminded groom in Rome, Ga., forgot that he was to be married the other day, and when the time for the ceremony arrived he was not present. An examination showed that he had overslept himself. He apologized, but the father of the bride refused to accept him as a son-in-law, and the engagement was broken.—Detroit Free Press.

UNCLE JERRY IS DEAD

Ex-Secretary Rusk Passes Quietly Away.

HIS DEATH NOT UNEXPECTED

A Brief Biographical Sketch of a Well Known Public Man.

MADISON, Wis., November 21.—General Jeremiah Rusk, ex-secretary of agriculture, died at his home in Viroqua at 8 o'clock this morning. Though not unexpected, the announcement that an end had come to the life of this strongly individual character in the political life of the nation, caused a profound shock. He had been ill some time and dangerously so, but up to a day or two ago it was thought his iron constitution would pull him through. Since then, however, his constantly failing strength led his friends to anticipate the worst. The trouble which caused death was a complication of diseases of long standing, begun in the form of dyspepsia, resulting in an enlargement of the prostrate gland, followed by an abscess on the liver.

The whole family was at his bedside when the General breathed his last. His last words, spoken with effort, were, "I am dying, I am dying." The funeral will be held in this city on Friday, and the remains will lie in state at the Methodist church the day previous.

[Jeremiah McLain Rusk was born in Morgan county, Ohio, June 17, 1830. He divided his time between farm work and the acquisition of a common school education till he attained his majority, and in 1853 removed to Wisconsin and engaged in agriculture in Vernon county. He entered the National army in 1862, was commissioned major of the Twenty-fifth Wisconsin regiment, rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel, and served with General William T. Sherman from the siege of Vicksburg to the close of the war. In 1865 he received the brevet of brigadier general of volunteers for meritorious service at the battle of Sulkehatchie. He was elected bank comptroller of Wisconsin in 1866, which post he held till 1870, was chosen to congress as a Republican in the latter year, served three years, and as chairman of the committee on pensions performed important services in readjusting the pension rates. From 1872 he was elected governor of Wisconsin for three successive terms. His last appearance in public life was in the office of secretary of agriculture under ex-President Harrison.]

McKinley's Big Vote.

COLUMBUS, November 21.—The official count shows McKinley had a plurality of 80,095 and a majority over all of 43,025 in the late election.

TULARE COUNTY'S ASSESSOR

He Dies From the Blow Given Him by Lockhart.

D. F. Coffee, assessor of Tulare county, who was injured in a fight resulting from a quarrel over a game of cards in a saloon at Visalia last Saturday morning, died last Sunday.

Coffee was playing with a man named R. E. Lockhart and both claimed to have won the money put up, $96. A dispute followed, and Coffee applying an insulting epithet to Lockhart, was struck a heavy blow on the temple, which felled him to the ground and caused him to strike his head upon the sidewalk.

Coffee was permitted to be seven or eight hours without medical attendance, having been put to bed in a building near Si Lovern's saloon, and when a doctor was at last summoned it was too late to save him.

Lockhart is in jail and is very much affected by the occurrence. He is said to be of good family and has never had any trouble before.

The coroner's inquest was held on Coffee Monday. The evidence showed Coffee was drunk, that Lockhart had won the hand, and struck Coffee after the latter had pocketed the money and spoke to Lockhart in an offensive manner. The jury brought in a verdict charging Lockhart with manslaughter.

THE CATHOLIC FAIR.

Beginning of That Interesting Event This Evening.

The Ladies' Fair, for the benefit of the Catholic church, will commence this evening at Kutner hall. According to all reports from the ladies and others, it will be the grandest affair of the kind ever held in Fresno. James A. Gallagher will make the opening speech, and the festival every evening will be interspersed with music and serious and comic songs. A well supplied table will be continuously spread to fortify the minds and hearts from their foundation up, with a good supper. There will also be a variety of choice, cooling drinks for the thirsty.

Knowing how embarrassed some gentlemen must feel with their silver coins after the passage of that awful anti-silver law, the ladies have kindly resolved to accept all sorts of coin, silver not excepted. They also wish to explain to the public in general that, although there have been festivals heretofore nearly every year, they have always been for some other purpose, for the benefit of some particular society totally independent from the priest and from the church, and neither the priest nor the church have ever received a cent of it.

This fair is the first benefit ever given in twelve years, and it is for the most necessary repairing and refurnishing of the church building, without any percentage to the priest or anybody else; so that we all are equally interested in the success of the fair.

As soon as all the returns are in the result, be it large or small, will be announced, and our principal contributors gratefully mentioned, with a view to patronize those that patronized us.

Among the regulations for the fair is rule 5—Each booth will have its own circuit marked with chalk on the floor, into which no lady can enter to take away friends from another lady. Rule 8—Ladies in their zeal will please avoid all importunity in soliciting, lest it should in some degree diminish the pleasure of their visitors.

The entrance fee will be 25 cents, but children coming with their parents will be admitted free. Small children will not be allowed to solicit. The program for the first night is as follows:

At 8 o'clock, opening speech by Mr. J. Gallagher; piano solo, Miss Zina Balthis; 9 o'clock, comic Irish song, Captain I. B. Barber, Eisen's vineyard; 10 o'clock, duet, piano and mandolin, Miss Lola Avila and Miss Rosie Purdy.

A. GARRIGA, Pastor.

LONE STAR ITEMS.

Raisins Curing Nicely—Good Work at the School.

LONE STAR, November 21.—Charlie Williamson and wife have moved to their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton of the Enterprise vineyard had company from Fresno Sunday. Mrs. Hamilton's brother, E. A. Barkley of Marshalltown, Ia., who is visiting this part of California, was among the number.

The Lone Star school is making rapid progress under the efficient management of John Wash.

J. H. Wash is on the sick list this week.

The vineyardists of Lone Star have succeeded in getting their raisins cured nicely.

Irb Voice is lying very sick at the residence of his father-in-law, William Poole.

The Lone Star Sunday school is having very interesting sessions. Mr. J. H. Wash, the superintendent, thoroughly understands conducting a school. We think all would be benefited by attending.

Miss Lou Johnson has taken up her residence south of Fowler for a short time.

Mr. Smith and family of Fowler have recently moved to the old Morrison place.

Mrs. Jessie Williams, who has been lying ill at her father's residence for the past three months, is slowly convalescing.

BUSY BEE.

MIDWINTER FAIR.

NEARLY 400 POUNDS OF RAISINS DONATED YESTERDAY.

An Odd Contribution by Fred Lamond—Plans of the Commission.

The commissioners were satisfied yesterday with the contributions for the Fresno county Midwinter Fair exhibit. More raisins were received than on any previous day.

Louis Gundelfinger sent in a 120-pound box of exceptionally fine cluster raisins, a 110-pound box of excellent clusters was also received from E. Kennedy, and O. J. Woodward contributed 150 pounds.

While a very large quantity of raisins will be needed for the exhibit, as it is intended to build the walls of the court house model of them, the commissioners have no doubt they will receive all that may be required. Many contributions of the fruit are being received at the various packing houses, and when the time comes for a final report, it is expected there will be enough raisins and to spare.

Some persons have expressed the fear that the display in the court house model will not show up very well, as it will be too dark. This fear is groundless. The model will not be covered, except by the dome, and as the building in which it will be erected has a glass roof, there will be plenty of light. At night powerful electric lights in the dome will make the display a dazzling one.

The citrus fruits will soon be ripe and the growers of this county have promised to make liberal contributions. The court house dome will be composed of oranges and lemons.

As soon as the county's World's Fair exhibit arrives from Chicago, that part of it that is in very good condition will be added to the Midwinter Fair exhibit, while the remainder will be otherwise disposed of. Many of the jars will be emptied and refilled with oranges and lemons.

The dried fruit display of the Midwinter Fair exhibit, though very handsome, is small. When the dried fruits in the World's Fair exhibit is added to it, however, it will be an exceptionally fine one.

Among other contributions received yesterday are four fleeces of wool from C. A. Stephens. They are very fine and the first that have been contributed. It is to be hoped other sheepmen will emulate Mr. Stephens' liberality. The wool given by Mr. Stephens is of three months' growth from Hampshiredown sheep.

J. H. Larue of Malaga gave a box of winter pearmain apples.

C. C. Collins, two pumpkins weighing respectively 134 and 120 pounds.

A very odd contribution is that of young Fred Lamond. It is a piece of manzanita wood resembling a duck almost as closely as a decoy, and looks natural enough at a distance to warrant the belief that Hi Rapelji would shoot at it.

All applications of those wishing to make special displays in connection with the county exhibit should be in by November 23d and are to be addressed to Alex Goldstein, secretary of the Fresno County Midwinter Fair Association.

Preparing His Message.

WASHINGTON, November 21.—President Cleveland spends a large share of his time preparing his annual message to congress. It is said Hawaiian matters will be presented in the regular message. The probabilities are that the message will be a long one, owing to the entrance of several subjects to be discussed, not only on the Hawaiian subject, but also the tariff.

MADERA county Democrats have resolved that Grover is o. k. Pie this way, please.

PEOPLE who attend the Midwinter Fair from this county can take pride in saying that they contributed to the Fresno exhibit—that is, if they did anything to contribute to its success.

THE people of Fresno are again attesting their generosity by liberal contributions to the unfortunate family of the late William Farrow. Those who wish to aid these worthy people and do not meet the gentlemen having charge of the subscription lists are requested to leave their contributions at this office.

EDWARD ATKINSON, the celebrated free trader, has prepared a bill of fare for laboring men, the use of which he claims will enable a family of three persons to live on 45 cents a day. Edward's bill of fare will be in great demand in this country when his party succeeds in demolishing the protective tariff.

THE Expositor continues to cheerfully embrace the idea that the local bosses in its party can be, with its able assistance of course, easily ousted from power and relegated to their proper place in the body politic. It is to be hoped, of course, that this optimistic view is justified, but there are some things connected with recent history which throw a shadow of doubt upon it considerably larger than the hand of an ordinary man.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND, through his secretary of state, has committed himself to the opinion that it is the duty of this country to restore the ex-Queen to the Hawaiian throne. Some of the defenders of the Cleveland-Gresham policy are now trying to make it appear that those persons have no intention of carrying out what they have outlined as the proper thing to do. As matters now stands the affair does begin to look a good deal like a bluff—an attempt to scare the provisional government out of existence. If that fails, then there must be war or an admission that the administration lacks the courage to carry out what it alleges to be its duty.

THE delay of the Board of Supervisors in making the final payment on the court house contract, justifies the hope that the character of the work will be subjected to a careful investigation by competent and disinterested parties before such payment is finally made. Notwithstanding the favorable reports of architects and superintendents, there are grounds for the belief that a portion of the work at least has not been honestly performed according to the terms of the contract. If it has not been honestly done it should not be paid for, and if the payment is made and the fact subsequently developed that work is not honestly done, the responsibility will be transferred by common consent from the contructors to those who authorized work and controlled the paymen's therefor.

THERE is liable to follow much greater results than would appear at first glance from the successful application of electricity to the propulsion of canal boats in New York. It will make bread cheaper, for one thing, and whatever does that benefits mankind—and it may be brought home to us in California in a way we do not now dream of. In the level country about Fresno, for instance, there are miles on miles of canals, both broad and deep. A cheap sort of power applied to boats on those canals would make the moving of the crops to the railroads lines a vastly easier matter than it is now.—Oakland Tribune.

The time is not very far distant, if proper efforts are made to secure the cooperation of the government in improving the natural waterways of the state, when this great valley will transport to market a large part of its immense products by water. The navigable streams will be reached by canals, which can be as easily and cheaply constructed throughout the entire length of the valley as they can through any other territory of like dimensions in the world. When this is done, and not until then, will the question of cheap transportation for the producers of this valley be permanently solved.

AS MANY of the appalling railroad accidents are due to the willful neglect of conductors and engineers to obey explicit orders, something should be done to compel these autocrats of the road to obey to the letter the instructions which are given them. When a man has the lives of passengers in his hands it is certainly criminal for him to heedlessly ignore his running orders, and any railroad employe guilty of such conduct, even though no accident results from his carelessness, should be summarily dismissed from service. Such action on the part of railroad officials would have a salutary effect on their employes.—Expositor.

As the life of the conductor and engineer are at stake, it is hardly apparent that their care in obeying orders could be improved by any penalty which their employers could impose upon them. The ordinary man—to which class the railroad employe doubtless belongs—thinks quite as much of his life as he does of his situation. The statement that any considerable proportion of railroad disasters are caused by the willful disobedience of orders is highly improbable. Men do not deliberately disobey orders when both their reputation and lives are thereby placed in jeopardy. A majority of railroad accidents are unquestionably due to the inefficiency of the systems under which the roads are operated, the inferior quality of equipments, underpaid and unqualified employes, and occasional mistakes which will occur even under circumstances which are the most favorable for preventing them. An attempt to attribute any considerable proportion of the harrowing record of railroad horrors to the willful neglect of employes is simply preposterous.

The Fight is Off.

From the Madera Mercury.

The Johns-Dutchey fight is off and the sports are somewhat disappointed because they had expectations of seeing a good mill. Opinions as to who would come out the winner were somewhat divided, although the majority of the people believed that W. E. Johns would have proven the victor on account of his superior science. One disappointed sport offered to take the two men out to his ranch and build a pavilion for them, where they could slug each other to their hearts' content. Young Dutchy has gone back to Fresno, and it is doubtful if he and young Johns will ever have a chance to meet in the ring.

What He Was.

Eight little negro boys got on a Niagara street car at the corner of Vermont street about 7:30 o'clock last night. They had been out to St. Mary's to rehearse something or other (they were choir boys), and they were then on their way to St. Paul's. The women in the car talked to them and asked them all sorts of questions. They all talked willingly, except one little fellow, who was as black as coal and who seemed to be the butt of the other seven.

"So you all sing?" asked one of the women.

"Yep," answered three of the boys at the same time.

"Then you are regular little blackbirds."

"Oh, no, ma'am. Blackbirds don't do nothin but chirp. I'm a canary."

"An I'm a mockin bird," said another, and each boy told what kind of a bird he was until the eighth one, the butt before mentioned, was the only one who had said nothing.

"And what kind of a bird are you, my little fellow?" asked the woman.

"'Deed, ma'am," he answered, "I spec's I mus' be a chicken. I gets it in the neck so offun."—Buffalo Express.

Evading the Law.

Mother—What, Gracie! Your doll's theater out? Have you forgotten that it's Sunday today?

Little Daughter—Oh, no, mamma! This isn't a play; it's a sacred concert.—Truth.

The Escape.

Fullacash (waking with a start media noete, and hearing step sounds in his bedroom)—Who's there? Speak! Who's there?

Hoarse Whisper From the Darkness—For heaven's sakes, hush! There's a burglar just gone down stairs. I'm a policeman, and if you'll keep quiet and not strike a light I'll nab him in two twos.

Fullacash obeys; and the whisperer, which his name is Sikes, ambles gently down stairs and out of back door with his booty.—Pick Me Up.

Wanted to Be Certain.

Depot Policeman (in a loud voice)—Monon train all ready! Passengers for Reynolds, Lafayette, Linden, Crawfordsville, Greencastle, New Albany and Louisville, all aboard! Middle track! Train leaves in 20 minutes! Monon route! All aboard! Middle track! Monon route! Louisville, New Albany and Chicago, all aboard!"

Anxious Traveler (seizing him by the arm)—I want to go to Monon. What train 'll I take?—Chicago Tribune.

DIED.

GOUZY—At the county hospital, November 20, 1893, Santiago Gouzy, aged 72 years, a native of France.

HULTKRANY—In this city, November 21, 1893, John Hultkranz, aged about 44 years, a native of Sweden.

SUTHERLAND—At Blissfield, Mich., November 18th, 1893, Charles Frank Sutherland, youngest son of William and Nettie Sutherland of this city, aged 6 years.

Sweet baby, thou hast left us! Thy home, though full of people, is empty without thee—though darling child.

Thy father's fond heart cries for thee in vain, and desolate are the arms of thy devoted mother, and for myself, where shall I turn? for thou, sweet child, wast my little comforter.

Still can I feel thy kisses on my lips, and thy tender caressing arms about my neck, and hear thy fond words of sympathy breathed in my ear.

Oh, dear one! thou wert more than child in thy heavenly gift of love and sympathy, and altho' thy home and thy loved ones are lonely and comfortless without thee, still do we know that thou art safe with God, and will remain ever in our memories a child of light and love.

Pimples

The old idea of 40 years ago was that facial eruptions were due to a "blood humor," for which they gave potash. Thus all the old sarsaparillas contain potash, a nauseating mineral, that instead of decreasing, actually creates more eruptions. You have noticed this when taking other Sarsaparillas than Joy's. It is however now known that the stomach, the blood creating power, is the seat of all vitiating or cleansing operations. A stomach clogged by indigestion or constipation, vitiates the blood, result pimples. A clean stomach and healthful digestion purifies it and they disappear. Thus Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is compounded after the modern idea to regulate the bowels and stimulate the digestion. The effect is immediate and satisfactory. A short testimonial to contrast the action of the potash Sarsaparillas and Joy's modern vegetable preparation. Mrs. C. D. Stuart, of 400 Hayes St., S. F., writes: "I have for years had indigestion. I tried a popular Sarsaparilla but it actually caused more pimples to break out on my face. Hearing that Joy's was a later preparation and acted differently I tried it, and the pimples immediately disappeared."

EVANS GROWING OLD

He Is Likely to Die of Old Age.

SOME WONDERFUL QUESTIONS

Which Elicit Some Wildly Thrilling Information Touching Juror's Prejudices.

Yesterday morning Judge Harris opened court promptly at 9, and although he kept the wheels of justice rapidly whizzing, very inadequate progress was made.

The jurors were on hand, and answered to their names promptly and as promptly responded to questions—and such questions—it would be no infraction of the decalogue to fall down and worship some of them.

For example, after a number of preliminary questions touching the family history, the accident of nativity, and the query as to whether the victim on the rack is possessed of a cheerful, comfortable, satisfying and fixed opinion that Evans is guilty, he is anointed for his final expulsion from the box, with such startling, brain-racking conundrums as this.

"What store do you trade with—Have you any brothers and sisters—What are their names—Did you ever teach school—How large a family have you—Where was your father born—Do you belong to any lodges or debating societies—Have you ever had any difficulty in driving stock—Has any member of your family ever been in the legislature—Have you any particular fancy for animals?" ad infinitum, ad nauseam.

Now, just what all this has to do with the question of whether a man is or is not in a proper frame of mind to give a prisoner accused of crime a fair trial on the evidence produced is hard to discover.

Outside of being tactics to secure a delay there seems to be no rational object for lugging such slush into the trial of the case.

However, Chris Evans seems to stand it pretty well up to date except that he is aging slightly. He takes a lively interest in the case. When he confers with his counsel interest flushes over his face and his eyes snap.

He takes interest in the light byplay between counsel and frequently laughs quite heartily and does not seem oppressed or worried about the serious business of the case. That will come later.

Up to the closing hour 33 jurors had been examined during the two days, touching their qualifications to sit as jurors, of which six were accepted, seven challenged peremptorily—four by the people and three by the defense—and twenty were excused for bias.

The unusually large number excused for bias of opinion lies in the great notoriety the case has had.

Up to this time no great interest has been manifested since the opening of the case. A few curious people attend, but there is little to interest until the jury shall be completed and the taking of evidence begins. But seven names of this venire remain in the box, and when these are exhausted the court will resort to a special venire.

THE PROCEEDINGS.

Judge Harris opened court promptly at 9 o'clock, and the examination of jurymen began with J. F. McDonald of Fresno. He had read reports of the killing of Vic Wilson in the papers, and had talked with some of the officers and had a fixed opinion, and was excused on a challenge for bias.

A. B. Atwell of Wildflower had a fixed opinion and the court excused him.

M. Madsen of Fresno was not acquainted with Evans, but his fixed opinion excused him.

E. M. Bishop of Florence addition had a fixed opinion of the case, and was excused.

P. A. McNamie had made up his mind in the matter and was excused.

This closed the first panel of twelve, of whom 11 had been excused by the court for bias, and the prosecution excused Mr. DeMasters, thus clearing the box, which was again filled.

J. R. Austin had a fixed and positive opinion and was excused.

J. F. Hamilton of Selma was found without bias and was passed.

H. S. Akers, from the upper Kings river, had talked with Warren Hill about the murder, but had not formed any opinion from the story of eye witnesses as told to him, but did form an opinion from what the newspapers stated, but could give defendant a fair trial. He was challenged by the prosecution for bias. The challenge was denied and the juror passed.

J. W. Reese had read accounts in the papers, but had formed no opinion that he could not divest himself of. Passed.

L. F. Cately of Selma was interrogated with regard to his career from his earliest recollection to date with regard to his opinion as to the guilt or innocence of Chris Evans, the number and names of his brothers and sisters, his ability to handle mules, and having stated that he had no difficulty in the management of the only four-footed animal for which Providence is not responsible, Mr. Hinds gently inquired what church his father preached in and the juror was a member of and if any of his family had ever been in the legislature or in jail. Their innocence being established, the defense declared themselves satisfied without going into the color of the hair of his grand uncle or what he devoured for breakfast.

Joe Menghetti decided in short order that he had a fixed opinion, and was excused.

John McDowell was examined briefly about the heft of his opinion and the size and sex of his family and passed, and the court adjourned for the noon recess.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

At the call of court John W. Owens was examined and excused for bias.

E. Dudley of Selma testified that he had a family and was a member of a church. He had read the papers and talked with people. He thought Evans guilty, but he believed that he could give him a fair trial. He stated to the court that if he himself were on trial he would prefer a juror who had never read or formed an opinion than one like himself. He thought he could give the defendant a fair trial. He was challenged by the defense, but the challenge was denied.

John S. Ambrose stated that he was a vineyardist in the colonies; a native of Mississippi; did not know Officers Rapelji and Peck; had no prejudice against the defendant and none against capital punishment, although his mind was not made up as to whether it was a salutary method of correcting crime. He was not challenged.

Launcelot Gilroy of Lemoore was well informed of the facts of the case and had a fixed opinion, and was excused.

Lewis Corrick was examined, and having a decided opinion in the case was excused.

The examination of the panel being completed, the defense challenged peremptorily E. Dudley and L. F. Cately, and the prosecution H. S. Akers and John McDowell. Both parties being satisfied J. F. Hamilton, Joe W. Reese and John S. Ambrose were sworn in to try the case.

The box was again filled, and James Ferguson of Little Dry Creek stated that he had formed a conditional opinion dependent upon the correctness of what he heard. His opinion was made ground for challenge for bias, which was allowed.

B. F. Cotton of Sanger had read accounts in the papers of the murder, but had no fixed opinion. Would not be deterred in the performance of his duty by the Southern Pacific of Kentucky nor any other corporation, nor by the strictures of newspapers. At this point Mr. Tupper besought Senator Goucher to be lenient and not talk the juror to death, and he was passed.

John Booker of Lower Kings river had read accounts in the papers, but had no opinion. No challenge.

J. H. Blackwell stated that he was an unmarried vineyardist of Scotch parentage, born in India, naturalized in America, and a resident of Central colony, with a fixed opinion sufficient to disqualify him, and he was excused.

Frank Estelle, residing four miles east of Selma, after examination, was not challenged.

J. M. Akers, from Sanger, had talked with Warren Hill about the fight at Young's cabin, but he did not see enough of the fight to give an account sufficient to enable one to form an opinion. He knew nearly every person in the vicinity, and had heard a great deal about it, and had formed such opinion that he was excused.

W. W. McAboy testified that he was a native of Illinois, of Presbyterian descent, residing near this city. He was passed without a challenge.

Thomas Martin, residing four miles west of Selma, a native of Canada, was passed without a challenge.

Charles Oaks had read accounts of the fight in newspapers, but had formed no settled opinion therefrom. Is a duly elected constable, and a native of Kentucky. He was passed.

The prosecution challenged John Booker and Thomas Martin peremptorily, and the defense interposed a like challenge to B. F. Cotton, and Frank Estelle, W. W. McAboy and Charles Oaks were sworn in as trial jurors, who with J. F. Hamilton, Joe W. Reese and John S. Ambrose constitute the jury thus far.

The defense insisted that a special officer be appointed to take charge of the jury, as all the officers of the sheriff's office were interested in the reward offered for the conviction of Evans, and the court appointed J. W. Smyth. The court then adjourned to 9 o'clock this morning.

A MELANCHOLY SWEDE

SHUFFLES OFF THIS MORTAL COIL.

He Takes a Dose of Lead From a Bulldog Revolver.

John Hultkranz, a native of Sweden, aged about 45 years, committed suicide yesterday morning at the lodging house of D. Hennelly, 831 G street, by shooting himself.

Hultkranz came to Hennelly's place between 12 and 1 o'clock yesterday morning and asked for a room. He told the proprietor he had just arrived from Firebaughs.

He left the house about 8 o'clock yesterday morning and returned at 11. Shortly thereafter some persons in the bar room heard the muffled report of a gun. Albert Tager went into the room occupied by Hultkranz, who was lying on the bed with a pistol in his right hand.

The man had partially undressed, after which he lay down, and putting the pistol in his mouth, discharged it. Death had evidently been instantaneous.

The weapon with which the deed was done is a bulldog revolver, 38 caliber, and was bought by Hultkranz at Einstein's about an hour before he killed himself. He bought a box of cartridges at the same time.

The suicide left no letter, and as no one here is acquainted with him, his reason for killing himself is not known. No money was found in his clothes, and he probably spent all he had in the purchase of the revolver.

In a bundle were found three pairs of new woolen socks and a large quantity of tobacco and matches. He also had upon him naturalization papers, issued in San Francisco in 1892, which established his identity.

The coroner was notified and the body taken to the morgue. The inquest will be held this morning at 10 o'clock.

REASONABLE PREACHERS.

They Ask Nothing Unreasonable of the Press.

From the Bakersfield Californian.

Many of the San Francisco clergymen took a hand at the daily press in their sermons on Sunday, and it must be confessed that much of what they said was reasonable and well deserved. Too many men who have the control of newspapers think their highest, indeed almost their sole, aim, should be to "roast" some one who chances to disagree with them, or to disseminate scandal and set afloat stories with no other object in view than spite against the person attacked. There is still another class who delight in exploiting stories of crime with the utmost detail, and apparently revel in filth simply for filth's sake. There is no reason why all newspapers should not be conducted with decency and with a regard to the common amenities of life. The editor who acts the blackguard in the columns of his paper is morally certain to be the blackguard that he unconsciously betrays himself to be.

A RUNAWAY.

Ray Brown Has a Very Lively Experience.

Ray Brown of the Fresno Fruit Packing Company was the central figure in a lively runaway yesterday afternoon. He was driving a spirited animal out Ventura street, and when nearing I street a piece of paper blew around the corner, frightening the animal and causing it to make a sharp turn into I street, throwing Mr. Brown into the roadway.

The horse continued down I street at a 2.30 gait and succeeded in smashing the buggy badly before he was stopped in front of the police headquarters. Mr. Brown was badly shaken up, but was able to attend to business after a good brushing off.

The horse is the same one that threw Mr. Tenny in front of a moving train some weeks ago, when he lost part of both feet and almost miraculously escaped death.

FANNY DAVENPORT

At the Barton Tonight in Sardou's Great Play, "Fedora."

At last we are to see Fanny Davenport in Victorien Sardou's dramatic sensation, "Fedora," which is just now attracting more attention than any play of modern times. Thus far Miss Davenport has hardly found a theater large enough to accommodate the audiences desiring to see the actress in what is probably the greatest dramatic achievement of her whole career. It almost goes without saying that the sensation which Davenport and "Fedora" have created everywhere will be fully duplicated here.

A SHARP REBUKE

From Minister Stevens to Gresham.

ACCUSED OF UNTRUTHFULNESS

The Acts of the Hawaiian Patriots Justified—Calumnies Answered.

Minister Stevens, whose recognition of the provisional Hawaiian government has brought upon him the wrath of Cleveland and Gresham, has made a reply to his unscrupulous calumniators. Though an answer to Gresham's letter alone, it also clears up some matters contained in such portions of "Paramount" Blount's report as have been published. The letter is directed to the Kennebec (Me.) Journal, and is as follows:

According to authentic reports from Washington a public crime of startling import is about to be committed in the name and under the authority of the American government. A public crime of less proportions, but in its moral type similar to the stifling of the national life and the reform aspirations of Poland and Hungary a few years ago by the imperial despots, and to the crushing out of the newly formed republic of Rome by the usurped powers of Louis Napoleon.

All that American piety, American benevolence, American schools, and American patriotism have accomplished in Hawaii the past seventy years are now centralized in the provisional government, and stand in its support. It is a government honestly and ably administered, and the best government Hawaii ever had.

I know not the influence which induced Secretary Gresham to become the active agent in attempting such a grave offense against American civilization, justice and law. His intense hostility to ex-President Harrison, and to the illustrious ex-secretary of state, who passed to his grave in January last, is well known. It was that which caused him to betray and desert the great political party whose honors he had shared, and brought him to his present attitude toward his former associates and their work.

So far as his recent manifesto on Hawaiian affairs casts reflection upon my official action, I care little except to the degree that his cruel and untruthful words strike at the noble band of men and women who have for ten months stood so devotedly and unitedly in defense of American civilization and responsible government in Hawaii. The remarks made by me before the chamber of commerce in San Francisco June 1st, and the citizens of Augusta, June 29th, republished in the Kennebec Journal of today, are an answer to most of the shamefully unjust imputations on my official action under circumstances requiring my deepest anxiety to faithfully serve my country and the cause of humanity.

Perhaps nothing better shows the character of the secretary's assault than what he says about the hall which the men of the Boston occupied a few days and until better quarters could be procured. After I had made my request to Captain Wiltze to land his men as a precautionary safeguard to American life and property, he and his officers informed me that their men must have shelter for the night. Without special information in that regard, I had supposed that the ship's marines had tents of their own for their customary use in case of emergency on shore. I at once wrote a note and sent it by messenger to secure a large hall that was supposed to be available. The man in charge of the hall was several miles away. I had not known of the existence of the Arion hall until that evening, when a messenger with my note was sent to the supposed agent of the Arion hall, who was a Royalist. He returned me a courteous answer, saying he would be pleased to let the hall for the specified purpose, but he had ceased to be the agent, informing me who had then charge of the hall. This required a third note, and a third effort of the messenger, which proved successful.

So much time had been thus consumed that the Boston's marines and sailors were obliged to stand weary hours in the streets before they were able to go to their night quarters. All of them would have been lodged at the legation and consulate but for want of room, where as many as possible were received, these localities being several streets and squares from the palace and government building. For the occupation of Arion hall by the men of the Boston the committee of public safety and supporters of the provisional government had no more responsibility than Secretary Gresham himself.

Secretary Gresham assumes that the friends of annexation made the revolution, and that the provisional government, when acknowledged by the United States minister, existed only on paper. Queen Liliuokalani inaugurated the revolution by attempting to destroy the constitution by revolutionary means. From Saturday afternoon, January 14th, to January 16th, there was no government in Honolulu, except in the united and self-possessed attitude of the citizens, who assembled in a great mass meeting on January 16th and consummated their efforts for law and order by the establishment of the provisional government on the 17th, which was promptly acknowledged by all the foreign representatives, who were familiar with the circumstances of its creation.

It was fifty hours after Liliuokalani and her favorites had destroyed her throne by a revolutionary outbreak when the men of the Boston landed. In the exciting hours preceding and following her fall, her representatives, as well as those who formed the provisional government, had equal access to the legation. To all proper inquiries my answer was, that the United States marines could not take sides, but whatever de facto government might exist, would have to be recognized. When I did recognize it late in the afternoon of the 17th, the provisional government was complete master of the situation, had full control of the city and of the government archives, the police station being surrounded and at the mercy of the provisional government.

It was a small building in which the disorganized and powerless followers of the fallen Queen's paramour marshal took refuge, and they must surrender in a few hours by mere force of hunger. The provisional government knew its power to possess the station at once, but wished not to take a single life of its occupants. It deemed it wiser to await their surrender. Had the Queen's supporters dared to resist the organization of the new government, their only possible chance to do so was during Sunday and Monday of the 15th and 16th, while the citizens were attending their mass meeting, selecting their committees of public safety and preparing to organize a government, as openly as public meetings are held in any American city.

They did not dare to attempt to arrest or interfere with the aroused white citizens. It was a united and irresistible movement of the same men, with now increased numbers, that took away the despotic powers of King Kalakaua in 1887, and crushed the Wilcox revolt of 1889. They gathered at the armory with their rifles in hand, which were increased by other arms openly carried in a carriage from a gun store, with only three men in charge. The only government that existed, or could exist under those circumstances, was the provisional government. Whoever denies this has no other basis of his denials than perjured affidavits, hundreds of which are obtainable in the slums of Honolulu at $2 each.

An effort has been made to damage my recognition of the provisional government by a dispute as to the hour, by the clock, at which I gave recognition. That is of no essential importance, for, in fact, all resistance to the formation of a new government practically ceased more than two days before. The committee of public safety and the provisional government constituted the only Hawaiian government de facto existing for twenty-four hours prior to my recognition, the monarchical government having completely collapsed several days before. So all unjust imputations on Captain Wiltse and myself will vanish into thin air, and the crime of attempting to crush out the supporters of the Hawaiian provisional government will stand out in bold relief, to America's shame.

A Brick From The China Wall.

A gentleman who is now a resident of Fresno, about two years ago was in the vicinity of the great wall of China and he managed to secure a specimen brick to show to his friends. If one reflects that this brick was placed between layers of mortar to build up a great wall about 2100 years ago, one's veneration for the oldest inhabitant will be somewhat diminished. The most curious feature in the case is that on one side of the brick a little groove was found from which a small card was extracted, and on the card was printed in the best St. Louis copper-face type print: "If you want the best wood and coal in town, go to Redden & Collins, they sell cheap cheap. Telephone 49."

HEALTH OFFICER HOPKINS.

His Report on the Cases of Glanders at Cissell's.

Dr. St. George Hopkins, the county, health officer, returned yesterday from a trip to Mrs. Cissell's place, where he went to investigate the glanders cases.

Dr. Hopkins first visited A. J. Scoggins' ranch. He first met A. J. Scoggins Jr., who told the doctor that no horse on the ranch had been or was sick with the glanders, and that no animal had been killed on account of having glanders.

Later, Dr. Hopkins saw A. J. Scoggins, Sr., who acknowledged he had killed a mule and a horse because they were glandered. On investigation the doctor found Scoggins had left the mule where it was killed, right in the middle of the range, where other animals could approach it and get the disease by contact. He made Scoggins burn the animal.

Dr. Hopkins then visited Mrs. Cissell. That lady assured the doctor that her boy, Albert, who died from glanders, did not get the disease from the pet colt, but from Scoggins' mule. Albert was a curious lad, and seeing the mule was sick went to where it was and watched it, and sometimes handled the animal.

Dr. Hopkins and Veterinary Surgeon Edwards, who accompanied him, examined the colt, and found it perfectly healthy. Mrs. Cissell also stated that one of Scoggins' glandered horses had come to the water trough and dropped down from weakness. Scoggins afterwards came and took the horse away.

Mrs. Cissell's other son, Leroy, is very ill with the disease, and cannot recover. Dr. Hopkins says that Mrs. Scoggins, who visited Albert Cissell while he was suffering from glanders, also shows symptoms of the disease. It is the opinion of the doctor that glanders is prevalent among the horses in that vicinity, but that the people are hiding the fact because they do not want their stock to be killed. He will make his report to the supervisors today.

UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT.

The World's Fair Through a Camera.

The panorama of the World's Fair in 200 views to be seen at the Advent church this evening will bring the scenes out with such perfect clearness that the onlooker seems to be in the very exposition itself. The majestic buildings, the beautiful grounds, the quiet waters of the lagoon, the interesting features of the Midway Plaisance come before the eyes in realistic power. Details of the decorations and groups of statuary will appear in startling relief. These illustrated lectures have drawn overflowing audiences in Oakland, San Francisco, San Jose, Sacramento and elsewhere. Mr. Rice has so large and complete a collection of views that two evenings are absolutely necessary for their presentation and study.

DECEMBER WEATHER.

A Record of Observation for Six Years.

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE,
Weather Bureau,
FRESNO, November 20, 1893.

The chief of the weather bureau directs the publication of the following data, compiled from the record of observations for the month of December, taken at this station for a period of six years.

It is believed that the facts thus set forth will prove of interest to the public as well as the special student, showing as they do the average and extreme conditions of the more important meteorological elements and the range within which such variations may be expected to keep during any corresponding month:

TEMPERATURE.

Mean or normal temperature, 46.

The warmest December was that of 1889, with an average of 49.

The coldest December was that of 1890, with an average of 44.

The highest temperature during any December was 70 degrees, on December 1, 1890, and December 26, 1892.

The lowest temperature during any December was 27 degrees, on December 25, 1891, and December 15, 1892.

Average date on which first "killing" frost occurred (in autumn), December 6th.

PRECIPITATION.

Average for the month, 2.00 inches.

Average number of days with .01 of an inch or more, nine.

The greatest monthly precipitation was 3.90 inches, in 1891.

The least monthly precipitation was 1.16 inches, in 1887.

The greatest amount of precipitation recorded in any twenty-four consecutive hours was 2.10 inches on December 29-30, 1891.

CLOUDS AND WEATHER.

Average number of cloudless days, nine.

Average number of partly cloudy days, ten.

A DIPLOMATIC BOY.

His Reformation Was Sudden and Many Sided and Served His Purpose.

I have a little son 8 years old. He is smart and bright, and for mischievousness I think can't be beaten. I was sitting in a room one day reading and smoking, when he came sauntering up to me with the forefinger of his left hand in his mouth. I thought at the time that there was something wrong, but said nothing with regard to the same.

"Pa," he said after awhile, "I didn't get one demerit in school today."

"You didn't, Willie?" I interrogated, throwing a rather fierce look upon him. "Well, I'm sure that's a good showing."

"Yes, and I carried a bucket of coal up for Kate after school," he went on, still keeping that finger in his mouth.

"Why, you are getting very considerate," I returned.

"Yes, and I brushed your coat all off nice and clean."

"No, Willie; you didn't do that?" I asked, looking frowningly at him, for I knew he had been up to something.

"Yes, I did, pa, and I lit the gas in ma's room for her."

"Well, now."

"And I shined your best shoes until they glitter like Sister Ella's looking glass."

"Is that so? What else have you done?"

"Well, I studied all my lessons in school, got out at the regular time, said 'yes, sir,' to Uncle John and helped the hostler around the stable."

"Why, what is the matter with you? Are you going to get sick?"

"No, sir," he replied, twisting around a trifle, "but I'm going to be a better boy—at least for a while."

"You are? Well, I'm glad to hear that."

There was a short pause, and then he said: "Here, pa, are two cigars for you. I bought them with my own spending money. I'll buy you a boxful when I get money enough."

At this juncture he placed both little arms around my neck and sobbed aloud.

"Oh, pa," he asked, "do you like your little boy?"

"Why, of course I do," I replied, getting alarmed. "Are you ill?"

"No, but I've got something to tell you. Would you keep your little Willie from pain?"

"Certainly I would. Tell me what is the matter, my son?"

"All right, pa, I will—dear, good, old pa. This morning Billy Dalton, Tommy Todd and myself were playing ball, and I couldn't catch very well, so I went and got your brand new stovepipe hat and caught with that. Pa, that hat must be made of awful poor stuff, for the first fly ball went clear through it, knocking the roof out. But never mind, I'll buy you another one," clasping me tighter as I essayed to rise, "and one gooder'n that too!"

What could I do?—Boston Courier.

Paderewski as a Hard Worker.

To be a pet of the public sometimes has its disadvantages. M. Paderewski, for instance, keeps up his reputation only at the cost of tremendous efforts. To an interviewer for Black and White he has confided the fact that he practices at the piano often for 15 or 16 hours a day. Once, in New York, he had to work up eight entirely distinct programmes in little over as many days, and then it was a case of 17 hours' practice daily. One must always be at it, he explains, to keep the fingers right and the memory active. The work is certainly tiring, and M. Paderewski considers that playing billiards—a game he is very fond of—has saved his life by affording him the necessary relief from his arduous work.

Those crashing blows of his on the piano are not, as some might imagine, made with the closed fist. Sometimes they are done with the third finger stiffened out, sometimes with the thumb sideways. He seems to see nothing wonderful in the effect produced, although his hands are so delicate that an ordinarily firm shake makes him wince. It is true that he has a forearm such as a professional strong man might envy, so perfect is it in its muscular development.—London Daily News.

Thought He Could Jump.

A young man the other day got an umbrella where the bottle got the cork—in the neck. This young man is one of those fellows who can readily explain to you that nothing that any one else can do is really as difficult as it appears. He joined a local gymnasium not long ago, and after watching the members once or twice going through their exercises came away with the feeling that he was a full fledged athlete. Walking on East Court street alongside of the jail, he espied two women ahead of him walking abreast and carrying a basket of freshly washed clothes between them. The street being narrow at this point, they took up the full width. The young man, being in a hurry, thought he could save time by jumping over the basket, but his calculation was not acute enough, and he kicked some of the wash off. After walking a few steps he turned around to ascertain the result of his maneuver and was just in time to see an umbrella hurled at him by the unerring aim of an enraged woman. He tried to dodge, but was too slow.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

THE KING OF BEASTS.

He Is Merely a Big Cat, After All, and a Coward at Heart.

If we quit heraldry for fact and go by the testimony of travelers and hunters, it is very doubtful whether the lion deserves his magnificent reputation. It is his appearance, no doubt, which has gained for him the appellation of "king of beasts," with all the regal honor pertaining to it. Certainly he looks "every inch a king." Nothing can be finer. The fancy itself could conceive nothing more fittingly representative of majesty than the full grown male lion, gazing with great yellow eyes, which seem to know no fear, and the ample honors of his shaggy mane wrapped round his massive front and forearms. He looks like the embodiment by nature of lordliness and magnanimity, and he has been adopted as such in all literature and poetry from Homer and Æschylus down to the "lion comique" of our music halls. Yet he is only a cat—a great cat—after all, and those who know him in his native wilds give a very different character of "felis leo" from popular conceptions.

We do not wish to calumniate a creature so intimately connected with British story and so dignified in bearing and behavior, for nobody can deny that the lion is a great gentleman in his manners. Nevertheless, African sportsmen relate that he can show himself as cowardly as he is cruel; that he will abandon his consort and cubs in a moment of extreme danger, and that he scarcely ever charges straight home upon anybody who, armed or unarmed, has the presence of mind to await his onset. He is described as very nervous and very cunning, and dreading beyond everything the superior prowess of the white man.

The early Dutch settlers at the cape speak of lions prowling round the fort at night "in such numbers as though they would take it by storm." Now one must go very far into the African "veldt" to see a lion, and a strange fact is that he has learned the craft of silence and is seldom or never heard to lift up his mighty voice except in the far wilderness, where the hunters have not come except singly. Thus it is written in an African guidebook: "Though his footprints may frequently be seen near the mountains of Lokaron and Bontlanama, and he will sometimes venture to carry away an ox from a wagon span thereabouts, he rarely or never makes his presence known by his roar, having learned apparently that it will only have the effect of frightening off the few timid antelopes upon which all hopes of replenishing his larder depend, or, worse still, of betraying his position to his inveterate enemy and persecutor, man."—London Telegraph.

It Was All Love.

A writer for the Boston Transcript was the witness the other day of a very pretty scene on a street car. There was an old negro woman—a very black old woman—whose face, besides being black, was pockmarked. No doubt a superficial observer would have called her repulsive, but there was a sweet and kindly look in her eyes and a benevolent expression about her black features which, as you looked at her, gave you a glimpse of something beautiful.

At her side, with his sweet child face toward the window, knelt a little white boy—a handsomely dressed little chap with blond curls and blue eyes. He asked the old black woman questions now and then, which she answered with a deep, grave, kind voice, and she called the little fellow "honey."

Presently this little Caucasian leaned over tenderly toward the old woman, put his arm lovingly around her neck and laid his pink and white cheek against her black face. That obliterated every bit of repulsiveness the woman might have had with every person of sentiment in that car. To this little boy the old black face was entirely beautiful, because it was all love. The beauty that he saw was a good deal more than skin deep.

The Ring Pheasant.

This bird was imported from China by O. N. Denny some eight years ago. Six pair were let loose on Petterson butte, about four miles from Sodaville, Or., and the climatical conditions and country being favorable and being protected by a strict law for six years they have multiplied rapidly and now are one of our most common game birds. In fact, they multiplied so rapidly that long before the six years' protection had ceased the farmers complained bitterly that the birds were a serious damage to their grain and gardens, and many birds were killed, but in this I think they were mistaken, for in my examination of many stomachs at all seasons of the year I found but very little grain as their food, but many wild seeds, bugs, grasshoppers, etc.

I think that the farmers have realized this also to some extent, as nearly all have now posted trespass notices for their protection.—Science.

It Went Unpunished.

This story is told of the late Dr. Holland, better known as "Timothy Titcomb." During the service of one of the large churches in Springfield, Mass., a heavy electric storm came up, and one of the gentlemen of the choir set out to secure an omnibus to take the ladies home. Among the fair singers was a certain Miss Etta S——, and as Dr. Holland was gallantly helping her into the vehicle a terrific clap of thunder startled them, upon which he remarked, "'Ett' in terror packs home in a bus" (Et in terra pax hominibus). To close this strange tale, it may be well to add that the doctor was not immediately struck by lightning, but died years afterward peacefully in his bed.—San Francisco Argonaut.

To Kill a Lobster.

When a live lobster is required for boiling or other purposes, here is a simple and comparatively painless mode of killing it: Run a long, narrow bladed knife into the tail at the third joint from the end, having the blade slant downward. This will cut the spinal cord, and death will quickly follow.

Smelling Out Bank Bills.

If a bill must be sent in a letter, the safest plan is to roll it tightly into the shape of a lamplighter and lay it in the fold of the sheet inclosed. Arranged in that fashion, the fact that it is money cannot well be distinguished by the "feel." A thread, with a knot at the end, will not be so likely to fetch a telltale fragment of the fiber paper when drawn by means of a needle through the envelope, and the smell of it will be less perceptible. So peculiar is the effluvium belonging to bank or treasury notes that experts at the bureau of engraving say that they can distinguish them when sealed in envelopes by the nose every time. A thief once showed to government detectives who had caught him that he could pick out, while blindfolded, from a pile of 400 letters every one of seven which contained paper cash merely by scent.—Washington Star.

DESCRIBE YOUR FRIEND.

And Then See How Well Your Picture Will Fit Scores of Others.

"He was a young man and fairly good looking; smooth face and without glasses; wore a dark suit; was about 5 feet in height and looked like a married man. Anybody would know him." Such was the description turned in by a young woman who slipped quietly into the city editor's office and wanted to advertise for Chalmers. It appeared that Chalmers had left home, and nobody knew why, and this young woman had faith that her recital of his personal traits would bring him back. It was a good example of the average person's power of description of a fellow being.

It is totally inadequate! Though man be fearfully and wonderfully made, there seems to be an unaccountable inability in nine persons out of every ten to give a creditable word picture of any one whom they have seen. Because we understand the looks of a person when we meet them, it never occurs to the mind that other people do not grasp a thorough idea of his appearance with a few passing phrases of description.

Your friend comes in, and you expound to him that such and such a man has just called for him, but almost invariably your exposition is a jumbled lot of phrases which apply to the human race in general.

The other day when I rushed into my office room with a column story on the end of my tongue—or at the tip of my pen, to be more accurate—I was given this greeting:

"Hello! A man has just been in to see you."

"What did he look like?"

"Oh, he was a good looking fellow—not very tall, rather heavy, but not too much so."

"Was he old or young?"

"About 20 or 25, I should say."

"What color of hair?"

"I don't remember now. However, I don't think he had a mustache."

"How dressed?"

"Oh, just an ordinary business suit."

Have you ever heard such a description? If not, watch yourself next time you tell of some one's call. You will be surprised to find that your description would fit almost any member of the human race.

Why is it?

I don't know. We read in books that it's because we don't cultivate the habit of intelligent observation.

There was once a boy who learned how to describe what he saw. Every morning he was sent by his father to walk rapidly by an elegantly arranged window, and then afterward to repeat to him all the things he saw at this one glance at the panorama and to describe them. At first the lad could remember but few things that his eye may have caught in the passing glance, but in time he could remember almost everything in a show window by merely seeing it once.—Boston Herald.

At the Manicure's.

The manicure with the golden hair was bending over the hand of a new customer.

"Do you want your hands bleached?" she asked.

"Yes."

She applied the bleach, using more than the ordinary quantity upon the thumb and forefinger of the right hand. After working for about five minutes she stopped and said:

"It is always difficult to remove nicotine with the first application."

"Wh-a-a-t?" gasped the society girl, elevating her eyebrows. "Nicotine? What do you mean?"

"The cigarettes, you know," replied the manicure. "It's perfectly awful how they stain the fingers, ain't it?" And she smiled a smile that even the society girl couldn't resist. That made them friends, and they fell to discussing the different brands of cigarettes. And when the job was done the society girl whispered:

"What'll take the stain off?"

"Use lemon juice—I do—we all do."

"Thanks."—New York Herald.

About Opals.

The prejudice against opals appears to be disappearing. Anyhow they are popular. There are several varieties of opals and therefore several degrees of merit. The precious, or noble, or oriental opal is the supreme. This has all the colors, and when these colors are broken into spangles it is then called the harlequin opal. Then comes the fire opal, or girasole, with hyacinth red and yellow reflection. The former comes from Hungary, the latter from Mexico. The common, or semiopals, are nonopalescent. The hydrophane, or oculus mundi, is nontransparent, but becomes so by immersion in water or any transparent fluid. The cacholong is nearly opaque and of a bluish white color. The hyalite is colorless, pellucid and white. The opal jasper or wood opal is the petrifaction of wood, opalescent, but without the coloring which makes the "noble" gem so precious.—Chicago Tribune.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE REPUBLICAN

(Daily or Weekly) May Secure a Copy of Either

"The Ladies' Own Cook Book" or "Our Family Physician"

By sending to this office the name of a new subscriber to either daily or weekly with pay for first month for daily (sixty cents) or three months (seventy-five cents) for weekly.

These books are, either of them, worth many times the price of the paper, but are given away so as to increase the already large circulation of THE FRESNO MORNING REPUBLICAN and FRESNO WEEKLY REPUBLICAN.

The books are well and substantially bound, clearly printed, and are highly useful in the household.

OUR FAMILY PHYSICIAN

Is a standard work, over 100,000 copies having been printed and sold. It was compiled and edited by H. R. Stout, M. D., a physician of more than national reputation. It is a plain, practical and reliable guide to the detection and treatment of all the diseases common to the country. Designed for use by people who have not made the practice of medicine a study or a business and who are not supposed to be familiar with technical phrases and names, but want information stated in plain English. Gives separately with every disease the treatment prescribed by each of the "schools" and full and explicit directions for nursing the sick, preparation of food for the sick, etc.

To know when to go after a doctor is an important thing. Nine times out of ten calling one is a useless expense, while failing to call one at the proper time may cost a life. This book contains 540 pages, bound in cloth, making an ornamental, as well as useful, addition to any library.

THE LADIES' OWN COOK BOOK

Is a practical and economical guide to cooking, canning, curing and preserving. Including also a chapter on confectionery, showing how to make all kinds of candies, ice cream, etc., by MRS. JANE WARREN.

This book is a standard authority on cooking. It is very tastefully printed and bound in oilcloth.

A copy of either of these valuable books will be presented to any subscriber of THE REPUBLICAN, according to the terms set forth above.
